Sale of Tickets Encouraging—Rehearsals Are of Nearly Every Day Occurrence—Reservation of Seats March 27 And 28 At Woodward's Piano Store

Much anticipation and enthusiasm is being shown by the people of Charleroi and those in surrounding towns, as evidenced by the rapid sale of tickets for the annual Elks Minstrelsy, which will be presented at the Palace theatre, March 31, April 1 and 2. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. The Minstrelsy, as given by the Charleroi lodge, B. P. O. Elks No. 494, has always been one of the greatest entertainments of the season and with many additional attractions, the performances that take place in a week's time will without doubt be the greatest ever. A number of young ladies will add much to the occasion this year.

Under the supervision of John Jenkins, and the management of William R. Gaut, with the assistance of their committees, rehearsals have been at most daily occurrences and plans are fast being pushed to completion. Tickets, which are being sold at various stores in town, are going at a rapid rate. Reservation of seats will take place March 27 and 28 at Woodward's Piano store, McKean avenue.

The following is a resume of what may be looked forward to: James S. Russell will be the interlocutor this year, with C. Warren Kinder, Walter Stroud, Mrs. Daniel Harris and Mrs. George Clark the ballad singers. The end men are Charles Ludwig, Jay Reeves, William Ludwig, Laurence Bailey, while the premier ends will be taken by the well-known Fred Brady and Fred Kyle of Belle Vernon. Under the direction of Miss Ethel Goldsmith, there are six high school girls being trained to put on something new this year in the form of eccentric ballading. These girls will appear in the costume of Bellhops, and will give a number of clever dances throughout the program. The girls are Kathryn Goldsmith, Mary Mo-

REV. JEWELL, THE PRINCIPAL ORATOR, AT CLASS BANQUET

Rev. Jewell, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Belle Vernon, gave a most interesting and impressive talk at the banquet of the Men's Bible class of the First Presbyterian church of this place, held last evening in the Sunday school room of the church, with 37 in attendance. His talk was concerning the work of the men in the church, and was followed by remarks made by Rev. R. J. Shields, pastor of the church, Dr. J. K. Smith, W. C. Clark, superintendent of the Sunday school, Lee Showers, teacher of the class and Dr. J. W. Hunter. W. C. Clark also led in the union singing which was very much enjoyed.

Potted plants and flowers were the prevailing table decorations. The members of the Ladies' Aid society were caterers and received many complimentary remarks for their efficiency in this regard.

gan, Hortense Greenberg, Margaretta Carroll, Louise Greenberg and Estelle Carroll.

A chorus of 39 of the best local singers will entertain with various songs. The members of the Monday Musical club are also bringing forth some of their talent this year and there will be a sextette of singers on the program. Mrs. George Clark will appear on the program as a soloist this year. Mrs. Clark's singing has in former years been one of the outstanding features of the performance.

Mr. Jenkins is staging a funny farce as the closing act of the Minstrelsy, and which will be the prominent feature of the evening. Those taking part are as follows: Jack Mier, Joe Connell, "Bill" Ludwig, Ruth High, Mrs. William Brown of Dunlevy, Ellis Murdock, Tom Bailey, Tom Arrigo, J. O. Bechtel and John Jenkins. This scene will be a rip-roaring comedy that will take the blues away.

Committee Hits Tiger—Sinclair Won't Talk

Washington, March 22.—(United Press).—Harry F. Sinclair, lessee of the Teapot Dome, today successfully denied efforts of the Senate oil committee to make him testify. Immediately after Sinclair was dismissed from the stand, Will Hays was called and opened his testimony with a vigorous denial that he ever received any Sinclair oil stock—75,000 shares, according to jurors, to liquidate a part of the National Committee deficit after last election. The committee had orders to insist that Sinclair take the stand for examination. He read a statement declaring he would reserve all testimony for the court because the committee had turned over to them the question of legality of his lease. He declined to answer any of the score of questions "shot at" him, after he had made this statement.

The committee excused him without any intimation of what would be the next step they would take. Hays revealed, however, that Sinclair did not contribute $75,000 to the Republican fund. Hays testified he "may have asked" Sinclair for money himself.

AUTOIST IS HURT LAST EVENING

Blinded by the headlights on a car traveling toward Finleyville, James Hardester of Victory Hill, driving a Buick roadster, wrecked his machine and was himself badly injured last night on the Riverview-Finleyville highway.

Hardester was hurled from his car and suffered bruises about his neck and shoulders and a painful cut across his left cheek, received when he attempted to jump from the machine as it left the highway. The car crashed into a tree, while the driver of the other car, slackened his speed, did not stop to render aid to the luckless Hardester.

Passage Of Game Refuge Bill Is Urged

Harrisburg, March 22.—(United Press).—Sportsmen of Pennsylvania were urged today by Seth E. Gordon, executive secretary of the Game Commission, to bend every effort toward passage by Congress of the federal game refuge bill.

The law would provide refuges and "public shooting grounds" for migratory birds of all kinds. They would be established in suitable places by the government and would be governed by federal laws.

Game refuges, as every Pennsylvania sportsman knows, Gordon said, are the backbone of successful game propagation and conservation. They are the main factor in bringing back and maintaining the supply of game in this state.

"In the opinion of the Pennsylvania Game Commission," Gordon said, "the refuge system of propagating game in its natural habitat and environment, under absolutely natural conditions, with protection from hunters, vermin and fire, is infinitely (Continued on page five)

COMMISSIONERS TO NAME REGISTRARS

The county commissioners are giving notice by advertisement that they will sit at their office in the court house on Friday, March 28, at 11 o'clock, for the purpose of meeting and examining persons suggested for the position of registrars in the City of Washington. Under the Third class city law these registrars are now appointed, one from each party in each voting district of Washington. There are 17 voting districts in the city of Washington, and that means there will be 34 registrars. Under the borough form of government these registrars were elected, and there was one in each district.

Applications for positions of registrar must file petitions with the commissioners, to be signed by at least five electors of the district in which they reside, these signers to be of the same party affiliation as the applicant. Where there is a party committee in the district, the petition has to be approved by this committee.

At this hearing before the commissioners any elector may appear in person or by counsel and object to the qualifications of the applicant. Registrars receive $5 a day for each day they sit at the polls. Those to be selected next week for the city of Washington will be at the voting precincts on Wednesday, April 2. They will sit from 8 to 1 o'clock, and 2 to 6 o'clock, and 7 to 10 o'clock.

"TAX SHARKS" ARE TO BE FIRST EXPOSED

Washington, March 22.—(United Press).—Exposure and punishment of "tax sharks" and of officials responsible for favoritism to big business in making tax reductions is to be sought by Senate investigators as the result of startling testimony in Washington's newest scandal—the Coughlin inquiry into the internal revenue bureau.

Testimony before the committee yesterday by J. F. Adams, formerly a supervisor in the bureau has startled the investigators on these inquiries:

1.—Was favoritism shown the United States Steel Corporation, the Aluminum Corporation and other great concerns, as Adams charged?

2.—Who issued confidential orders which Adams said went to bureau employees to expedite certain tax claims at the expense of others?

3.—Whether privacy of tax procedure is not a contributing factor to the abuses, which the committee believes, has grown up within the bureau.

A SOLDIER KILLED BY QUARTET OF M N

Dublin, Ireland, March 22.—(United Press).—Relentless search was under way throughout Ireland today for four men who attacked a party of British soldiers on a pier at Queenstown, killing two and wounding more than a score of them.

The attackers, driving a fast motor car, used a machine gun which mowed through the closely packed British troops with devastating effect. The soldier killed died instantly, and a second succumbed in a hospital in Cork today.

Although the assassins were dressed in the uniform of officers of the Free State army, it is denied that they were members of the government's military establishment.

Free State military headquarters in Cork has issued a statement declaring the assassins were undoubtedly, who have resumed the guerrilla tactics following the mutiny of many army officers and troops because of the government's military reorganization program.

Free State police, military and secret agents are searching Queenstown, Cork, and surrounding territory for the assassins. On early this afternoon no trace of them had been found and no arrests had been made.

The attack has aroused intense excitement throughout the nation and the press is unanimous in urging the government to leave no stone unturned to capture the murderers.

The British soldiers were just landing on leave when they were fired upon. A total of twenty-nine were injured, including two women who were on the pier. Four of the wounded are so seriously hurt they may die.

After mowing down the soldiers, the attacking party trained their machine gun on the destroyer Sybil which was in the harbor, peppering it with bullets which did no damage.

ANOTHER CHAPTER IN BIG "LIQUOR DEAL"

Washington, March 22.—(United Press).—Another chapter in the $200,000 "liquor deal" disclosed by the Daugherty investigating committee was ready for opening today.

Senator Wheeler, Montana, chief "prosecutor" on the committee said he has at least two witnesses on hand to give further testimony on this subject. These witnesses are:

Col. Thomas B. Felder, New York attorney, and close personal friend of Daugherty. Felder represented John Geroni, president of the Alps Drug Company, who related the story of the "six way split" on the liquor deals.

Will A. Orr, once secretary to ex-Governor Whitman of New York, alleged fixer in the deal who shared $650 on each case of liquor withdrawn from warehouses, according to Geroni. Orr is being recalled to amplify his testimony regarding giving money in liquor deals to Howard Mannington, Daugherty's friend, who lived at the "little green house on K-street."

Felder also will be questioned regarding Geroni's charges that the lawyer offered him $250,000 to allow 7,100 cases of Scotch liquor to be turned over to a bootleg ring in New York.

If these witnesses can be disposed of in time, Wheeler intends to recall Mrs. Roxie Stinson, divorced wife of Jesse Smith.

Before any witnesses are called, members of the committee anticipate another clash with Paul Howland and ex-Senator Chamberlain, Daugherty attorneys, over the production of the books of the Midland National bank in Washington Court House, Ohio, owned by M. S. Daugherty, brother of the attorney general.

When Mal Daugherty appears counsel for the "defense" intend to have him refuse to give up the bank records and expect the witness to be held in contempt. Wheeler expects to win when the fight is carried to the senate floor.

Whale Fishing

In early days the wooden sailing ships engaged in the whaling industry in southern seas returned only with whales and sperm whales, or cachalots. The so-called "finners," such as the blue whale, the largest animal in the world; the finner whale, the small fish whale, and the humpback, were all too active and sank too quickly when killed. But their turn has now come, for the whale gun is a finely fashioned cannon, the harpoon carries a shell and the body of the whale is kept afloat by inflating it with air through pipes from the engine room of the whaler. The rendering is now done in a factory on shore, or in a special large vessel moored in the harbor. Besides the whalebone, which no longer pays well or at all, and the oil, which is graded into qualities as it comes from the blubber, the fat of the tongue, and kidneys, the flesh and bones, and the refuse, there remain the baleen and bones, which are used in the manufacture of various articles.

Attacked by what he declares was a swarm of a thousand bats, Joseph Morosky, Southern Pacific station agent at Los Angeles, relates a weird story of a recent trip he made through a cave, 700 feet high and six miles east of Inglewood. Morosky says he lowered himself into the mouth of the cave and after proceeding down an incline for a distance of 200 feet, he found the entrance to a chamber which was the home of the bats. He says they began an infuriated attack upon him and declares that he owes his life to the fact that he wore a very heavy coat and gave his clothes were badly torn when he finally emerged from the cave. TAKES 5 MEN TO HOLD BIRD

Penguin of the South Polar Regions Weighs Seventy Pounds and Has Great Strength.

The largest, as well as the most of the penguins, those queer birds of the South Polar regions, was first seen by Captain Cook, the noted navigator. These strange creatures sometimes weigh as much as seventy-five or eighty pounds, and the muscles covering their breast contribute more than one-third of their entire weight. A very large specimen was captured on the Antarctic. Standing erect, the sheen of its plumage, it seemed clothed with gold and purple, and white and black.

Presently it gave an exhibition of its extraordinary strength. One blow of its flipper-like fore limb sent an impertinent dog howling off to nurse his head. Five men were required to secure the penguin, and they succeeded only with great difficulty, one holding each leg, one to each flipper and one grasping the neck. After being strongly bound, the muscular bird succeeded

When You Begin to "Melt Rubber"

That was the graphic term used by W. S. James of the U. S. Bureau of Standards, to express the condition that occurs when the braking strain of tires-on-road reaches its limit.

Traction ceases at that point and your brakes are impotent—regardless of the size or power of the brakes themselves.

It stands to reason that you reach the point where "you begin to melt rubber" just twice as often when the braking strain is all on two points as when it is distributed over four.

And that was proven in the tests by the Bureau of Standards.

As a matter of fact, you seldom if ever reach the point where you "melt rubber," when you have 4-Wheel Brakes.

Because—the strain is distributed over four instead of two points of contact with the road.

And, since the area of tires is proportioned to weight of car, the strain on each—and the heat generated by friction of rubber-to-road—is only half.

That's why tires last so much longer when the car has 4-Wheel Brakes.

One Rickenbacker owner states that he drove more than 36,000 miles on one set of cord tires; and hosts of Rickenbacker owners give 20,000 as their average mileage per tire.

Aside from the tremendous safety factor, the saving effected by properly designed 4-Wheel Brakes is also most gratifying.

But remember—there are 4-Wheel Brakes—and "4-Wheel Brakes."

Anyone who has tried all types will agree that Rickenbacker 4-Wheel Brakes are just the world's best.

See and compare design and construction. Then compare performance—before you buy.

But whatever you do, insist on "built-in" mechanically operated internal expanding 4-Wheel Brakes on your next car.

And if you would insure the least depreciation, longest life, lowest upkeep and most pleasurable riding, insist also on these features:

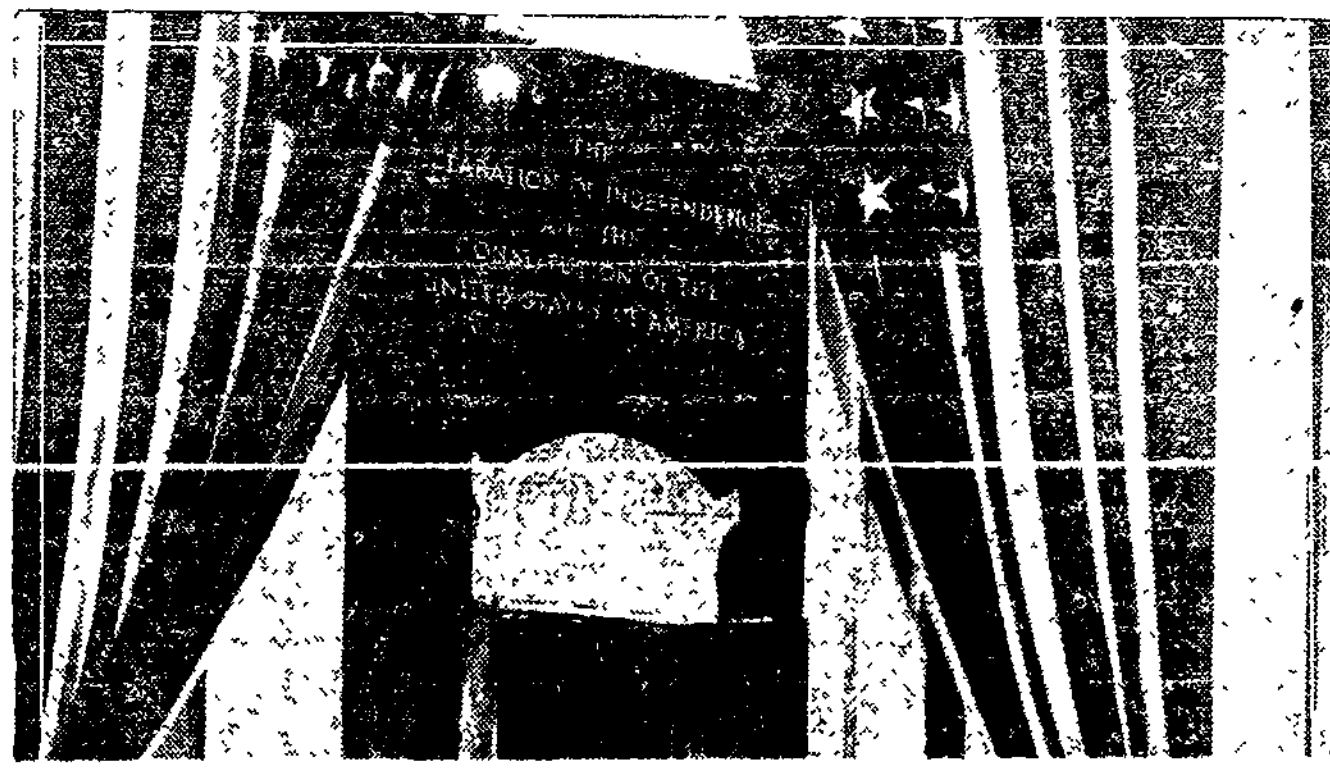

- A Vibrationless Motor—2 Fly Wheels
- An efficient Air Cleaner
- A Frame not less than 8" in depth
- "Cradle" type spring suspension
- Disc Steel Wheels
- And for ease of steering—ball bearings in steering spindles.

In all these great improvements Rickenbacker was first, and still is best.

Chief Executive West Talks

Radio fans all over the country and in England, were the recipients of a stirring message on Tuesday evening March 18, when Chief Executive James E. West, the one man who is responsible for the wonderful success that the movement has had, as a developer of boyhood, spoke at a dinner given to the Scout Executive at the Hotel Schenley, Pittsburgh. The chief point in his message brought home, was the crying need of development of leadership in the country represented by men of character. He also pointed out very strikingly and clearly, the responsibility that rests upon the shoulders of the Scout Officials. Thousands of boys heard the message, as their letters to Executive Benson of Pittsburgh, indicated. The success of broad-casting has resulted in plans being made for a number of other stirring messages of this type to be broadcasted by men high up in Scouting.

Donora Financial Campaign

The American Legion post has been quite busy during the last two weeks in lining up a financial campaign for Donora, which will start on Tuesday, March 25, to raise a fund of $2200, for the purpose of carrying on Scouting in Donora. The plan is to sell memberships on a contributing and sustaining basis. All contributing memberships will be $10, which includes a year's subscription to the national magazine "Scouting." All contributors over that will be listed as sustaining members. The various lodges and organizations in Donora have been asked to contribute and many have already responded. The success of the campaign seems assured and with the re-organization of the Boy Scout Council, under the leadership of the American Legion, Scouting in Donora, will once more flourish and become one of the brightest spots in the valley, as indeed it was formerly.

Monongahela City is going to put on a Boy Scout demonstration at the State Armory on Friday evening, April 4. The program will be dramatized to represent a "Day in Camp," and will begin with Reville and will be carried out in a characteristic manner. The program will proceed rapidly through all the activities in a day's work, including tests in First Aid, Signaling, Fire by Fillet, Wall Sealing, and Knot Tying, and other events, closing finally with a camp fire in the evening around which the boys will sing songs and do stunts, for the jollification and interest of those present.

Invitation tickets have been sent to all contributors and members of local Civic Organizations, and admission will be made through tickets only, making this meeting of a semi-public affair. It will be put on by the 5 active troops in Monongahela City.

Scoutmasters Training Course Closes
When the Scoutmasters Training Course closed last Saturday, March 15, at Monongahela City, many regrets were expressed, that the fellowship and instruction of these meetings should be discontinued. About 25 Scoutmasters and Assistants availed themselves of this opportunity to receive instruction through the best known process of teaching, that is, "Learn by Doing."

Instruction was given in Drilling, First Aid, Signaling, Bandaging, and Calisthenics, also in map making and leading games; while inspirational talks served to point out the high ideals found in Scout training. A desire has been expressed for the formation of some sort of a similar association, which would meet every six weeks, rotating from one town to another. This matter will be brought up before the Round Table discussions and will seek to crystallize this desire by forming some organization of this sort.

First Aid Demonstration.

The Hillman Coal and Coke Co.'s First Aid team, under the direction of G. H. Withers, have certainly co-operated, by the very practical demonstrations which they have put on in the various towns. Monessen Scouts witnessed this demonstration on Monday, March 17, at the High School Gym, at which time a great number of boys who for the first time saw the team work in a practical way and the handling of the First Aid problems. The members of the team have signified their willingness to act as instructor and examiners for the various troops in the four towns, and have been definitely appointed.

New Troop in Monongahela City.

The Monongahela City Methodist Church has sponsored a Troop of Boy Scouts and have appointed a Scoutmaster—Kenneth Rider, with his assistants as Joseph Wickerham and Glenn Woodward. The Troop Committee consists of Jack Brown, Paul Rider and Harry Landefeld. The initial steps for forming this troop were taken when the boys went for a hike on March 15th, and these plans crystallized at a meeting held March 17. The troop is now started and although just a small group of boys belong, it will only be a short time until this troop will be competing with the others in the Valley Council.

Gotham Intellectuals Lamented With Ego

"You don't know me? I am surprised. Why, I have had two intellectual dramas produced on Broadway," said the first guest to arrive at a private dinner the other day in a New York bachelor apartment to one of the late comers.

"Are your plays still running?" was the cold-blooded reply.

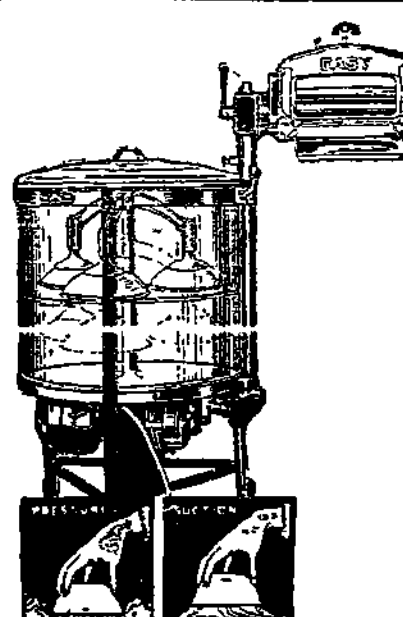

"No, they were not successful with the public, but the critics praised them highly. You must have heard of them. By the way, what have you done?" The comedy element of the small New York group who have set themselves up as young intellectuals and keep boosting each other is that they follow the fashions of the twentieth and eighteenth centuries and pattern their language after Sydney days when only a handful possessed the power of writing and reading, says Raymond G. Carroll in a New York letter to the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

"What have you done?" hooted pointblank at some new acquaintance is a favorite trick question designed to put the world in its place, Caesar talking down at a centurion.

"Not much," replied the later comer who did not look as if he were particularly hungry. "You see, my friend, I only have to my credit the building of one of the great office buildings in New York city, and it is still standing. I am an architect with scores of buildings to my credit. And they are still standing. Yet nobody knows me and I don't mind."

Alas! the reproach was lost upon a mentality saturated with ego, but several well-balanced brains within earshot of the exchange did not miss the victory of the architect.

Device to Facilitate

Instruction in Writing

Electrograph is the name of an instrument invented in Spain to facilitate instruction in writing in schools. The apparatus is designed to educate the hand to move in accordance with the will. First of all, metallic sheets are cut in such manner as to afford graphic designs most difficult for the untrained muscles—angles, loops, straight lines, curved lines, vertical and horizontal lines, etc. The sheets, when used by the child, must be so arranged that they may easily be brought together or separated, as desired; and this is necessary also in order to make the lesson difficult or easy, as desired by the instructor. These sheets, consequently, are fastened down with screws so peculiarly made that a certain pressure may cause them to give a bit to one side or the other. Under the desk is an electric bell connected with the sheets above by a copper wire. Below these, and entirely isolated, is another system of sheets. The child is brought before the instrument and told to place his paper between the free spaces of the sheets, mark his outline and then punch a key. This contact will open the electric current and make the bell ring. If the pressure he exerts does not make the metallic outline precisely cover the one on his penciled paper, the bell below rings, giving immediate notice of his error. The child enjoys the "game," and is stimulated to make his loop or curve exactly match that of the metallic sheet.

Sneeze Greeted in Many Ways in Various Places

"A vos souhaits!" (God bless you!) Now is the season when you hear the expression very frequently. With these words we apostrophize one who sneezes.

Among the Indian tribes of North America, we understand, a polite question is elicited by the sneeze of one's companion: "Who calls me?" When an Eskimo sneezes he says to himself: "Come back to me!" for popular belief has it that the sneeze indicates an escape or flight of the soul.

In the British East Indies it is also believed that part of the soul flies forth at each sneeze; and when the natives hear a friend sneeze, they say: "God protect you!" to which the sneezer's response should be: "And you likewise!" The Siamese believe that a person sneezes because God turning the pages of the Doomsday Book, has paused at his name.

In Portugal, when anyone sneezes, you raise your hat. The Irish and the Russians, like the Hindus, exclaim: "God protect you!" The Italians say: "Felicita!"

As for the English, they don't say anything at all, but they immediately take precautions against a cold in the head, of which the sneeze is supposed to be a warning.—Le Petit Parisien.

A River of Romance

What a stream of romance and story the Missouri river has been! This wonderful river with its broad stretches of lake and bluff, its bird-haunted islands and bays, its changing moods, its varying climes and vegetation, its Indian and white populations, its song and story, has built itself into our national structure, and the end is not yet.

The story of the Mississippi has not yet been written. It is liquid romance. It has been flowing down this central valley as long as water has flowed anywhere on this continent. The geologist speaks of it as "hoary with antiquity." And it will flow here when the last man has vanished from the scene of civilization and so long as water can flow on a parched and desolate globe.—Indianapolis Journal

Hunting Cheeta

For short distances the cheeta is supposed to be the swiftest quadruped. However, it is not possible to ascribe the honor definitely to any particular animal. The cheeta, which is found in Asia and Africa, is a large tropical cat, slender of body and limb. It is from three to four feet long and of a pale, tawny color, marked with numerous dark spots on its sides and back and almost white beneath. It resembles the leopard, and is often called the hunting leopard. The animal resembles the dog in docility. Its fur is not sleek like that of typical cats. It has a long tail, which is somewhat bushy at the end.

A Suggestion

"Well, law suzz!" ejaculated Mrs. Johnson in the midst of her reading. "This is shore funny: A professor, up there in the East some's, is going to try to larn young apes to talk."

"Hum!" returned Gap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge. "If it don't cost too much we might get him down yur to try his scheme on our baby. The little feller don't do much now but cuss."

No Consolation

The vicar, after a heavy defeat, was returning disconsolate from the links. "Cheer up," said his opponent, "you'll win at the finish. Why, you'll be burying me one day, I expect."

"But even then," said the vicar, "it will be your hole!"

Described to a T

"Can you give me a good description of your absconding cashier?" snarled the detective.

"We-ell," answered the hotel proprietor, "I believe he's about five feet five inches tall and about $7,000 short."

ROBERT LESLIE BARNHART.

With a career of usefulness not yet fulfilled; but being able to look back to a past replete with more of success than falls to the lot of the average man, Robert Leslie Barnhart, on Thursday evening, responded to the call of the inevitable and in passing beyond the vale to the mystic shores, leaves to his family, relatives and friends that imperishable heritage of a life that was won for the right.

As a pioneer citizen of Charlottesville, he was one of those noble expounders of thought and public opinion which redounded for public benefit. Interested in Charlottesville and in community welfare, the artistic hand of the architect swayed by him, is reflected in many of the public and private buildings of the borough. In community welfare he was not actuated solely by pecuniary gain in his profession, but coming to Charlottesville when the town was in its virgin state, with far-seeing vision, he saw the possibilities of the new Eldorado, and did his part in welding together the vast public and private interests with which the borough is now vested. Mr. Barnhart contributed to public welfare, and as a public-spirited citizen, his best epitaph would be "He lived to bless mankind."

In his church, social, lodge and religious relations, he was actuated by that spirit of nobleness, that feeling that equality should prevail, which will preserve and perpetuate his name to not only his posterity, but to this community. Further, as the head of an amusement house in the borough, he catered to public taste and made his theatre a Mecca for those who love vaudeville and moving pictures.

In his dealings with his employees, with companies who visit his theatre, he was the personification of fairness and an equal distribution of rights, and he was popular with the profession as he was honored and respected by the citizenry of Charlottesville and the diversified interests that he represented. A familiar figure on the streets of the town, Robert Leslie Barnhart will be missed, and his passing will be deplored. His death is a borough and community loss.

SPLENDID TESTIMONIALS.

The successes of the Charlottesville High teams in football and basketball was reflected in the splendid testimonials awarded at the High School building yesterday.

It was not so much in the giving of the gifts, as it was in the spirit prompting, the recognition accorded the students, and the honors won, doubly theirs and the borough schools. Much credit is due the athletes and their instructors, and the further fact that those winning the honors were amenable to instruction imparted.

Success of athletics in the schools, is confirmation for the statement that is being made by educational heads that "additional brawn develops brains;" that where the student is inclined to bodily weaknesses and infirmities he has, through the channel of athletics, very oft arrived at that bodily vigor which has contributed to the brain a keener sense of intellect arrived at through the provision of better health.

For, after all, the weak and puny student, is placed at disadvantage in the school room correspondingly with his more vigorous brother. If greater success comes through athletics in the schools, more power to athletics!

BIG BUSINESS AND POLITICS.

It is claimed that partisan politics entered into the passage of the Muscle Shoals bill by the House, accepting Henry Ford's offer which has been pending before Congress for there was any doubt as to the political status of Henry Ford," says the Philadelphia Record (Dem) "the Republicans in Congress held in abeyance his offer for the Muscle Shoals plant. As long as he was looked upon as a Democrat—his proposals floated in scorn, and he was decried in House and Senate—and only upon reprobation as a conscientious capitalist, could he take advantage of the situation."

vantage of the Government. A few weeks ago Mr. Ford gave out a statement in which he expressed the opinion that the Government was not sufficiently safe and that he favored his renomination and election. That was perfectly proper, of course, but its reaction upon Congress has been remarkable. Now that he (Ford) is for Mr. Coolidge, they have, with great enthusiasm, rushed through the bill accepting his offer, and an equally favorable action is looked for in the Senate.

Such a reversal of attitude for such reasons, considered in the light of the sudden reversal of the Republican Senate in the matter of the Colombian indemnity treaty, after Fall saw need of Colombia's good will following the discovery of oil in that country, would seem to be well within the bounds of probability and not unreasonably to be expected. But such a view tends to become doubtful when we examine the vote for the Muscle Shoals bill, which is reported, for, 17 Democrats and 57 Republicans; against, 122 Republicans and 19 Democrats. Nevertheless Republican votes had to be won over in order to pass the bill, even with the bulk of the Democrats remaining true to Ford, and it is plain that for some reason votes for the purpose were won over.

As regards Mr. Ford himself, does anybody know whether he is really a Republican or a Democrat in politics? None of his public utterances, so far as political principle is concerned, has shown a definite leaning either way. He does not seem to be a party man, but he successfully won the favorable consideration of Democrats by his Senatorial campaign against Newberry, just as he has no doubt won the favorable consideration of Republicans by his recent commendation of President Coolidge. What was his main object in both cases is best known to himself. But in this connection it is well to remember that Big Business is not apt to be partisan—except for itself.

FOOT HEALTH TALKS: What Are Bunions?

Here is another of the popular foot hygiene articles by Dr. William M. Scholl. He is the author of many works on the human foot and its care, and is editor of "The Foot Specialist."

By WILLIAM M. SCHOLL, M.D.
The general impression seems to be that a bunion is a growth like a corn. This is a serious mistake for a bunion has no relation to a corn.

A bunion is caused, in the first place, by the crowding of the big toe to the outside of the foot, forcing it either to underlap or overlap the second toe. The result is to force the joint to the toe outward, or away from the central line of the foot. Short, pointed toes and narrow restricted shapes in shoes are among principal causes, for when pressure is brought to bear on the foot its full expansion is not permitted and the great toe is forced outward and backward. Weak arch and flat foot condition can be traced in a great number of cases as being the direct cause.

A bunion consists of an inflammation of the soft tissues over the great toe joint. It may even involve the joint itself, in which case the twisting of the big toe may cause the joint to open and force the cartilage out. The cartilage is a small piece which unites the joints together. It is kept in supple condition by a lubricating secretion which is contained in the bursa, a little sac which supplies the joint with the secretion. When the joint is opened and the cartilage forced out the bursa becomes irritated and inflamed.

Of course, the forcing of the joint out of position makes it rub against the shoe and produces irritation of the skin. Nature, in protecting the skin throws a callous over the whole thing and you have a full grown bunion with all its agonizing pain and discomfort.

It is easy to understand why plasters, medicinal preparations, acids and other such treatments cannot bring correction. At most these can reduce the swelling a little, and perhaps remove the callous growth, but the bunion condition remains and will remain just as long as the big toe continues in its distorted position.

Correction can be secured only by straightening the big toe, reducing the swelling, shielding the tender joint from hurt or pressure and giving nature a chance to correct the harm. In considering foot troubles it is necessary to realize that after all it is nature that does the correcting; we can help nature by doing our best to restore natural conditions.

In correcting bunions the aim should be to support the arch to prevent spreading of the foot, straighten the big toe to remove the cause of the trouble and protect it from hurt while the healing process is being effected by nature.

It is absolutely necessary to support the arch in its proper position to obtain relief and build up the foot strength. This is the first step in correcting bunions, as it is in correcting almost every other foot ailment, because it is weakness first that causes the trouble and only a properly fitted arch support will correct this weakness.

Pittsburgh, March 22. — (United Press).—Twenty years ago J. H. Haugh, of Tarentum, bought a ham and found it was "stale." The Other Paradise.

A man had a shrew for a wife. After his death she grew contrite and wondered whether she had been unduly harsh with him. She felt so uneasy about it that she decided to consult his spirit through a medium. "Is this you, John?" she inquired. "Yes, Jane." "John, are you happy where you are?" "Ah, yes, Jane." "Happier than when you were living with me?" "Much happier." There was a long pause while she pondered that. Then she said: "John, what sort of place is heaven?" "I don't know," said John. SMOKY CITY

OF DARKNESS

Pittsburgh, March 22. — (United Press).—Pittsburgh today is in the grip of darkness brought on by the heavy fog.

At 11 a. m., the electric lights on the streets were on, automobiles used their headlights and advertising signs were lighted.

This is due to the air temperature of 36 degrees and a ground temperature of 32 degrees, caused by the blanket of snow over the earth, according to the weather bureau.

The temperature differences causes a slight melting of snow and the evaporation is carried on at such a rate that it remains in the air as fog. This fog combined with the normal smoke making the air so heavy and dark that the sun rays cannot penetrate the gloom.

Migratory Habit Still

Faint With Americans

A young man in Europe looks forward as a rule to spending his life in the city of his birth and, very likely, in the profession or business pursued by his father. But in the United States, for 200 years, a large part of each generation has moved West and created new homes for itself. Nothing could more effectively foster individualism of the type advocated (and typified) by Herbert Hoover.

This migratory habit persists to the present day even when it has lost much of its economic justification. "Americans are forever on the move; the man who lives in the house where he was born is almost a curiosity."

The sense of transience thus created leads also to a certain looseness of community organization, and specifically to a toleration of corrupt practice in business and politics. The mayor of your town may be a hoodlum; but after all, since you are thinking seriously of moving to Austin, Tex., next spring, what does it matter?

The departure from the old Americanism which was created so largely by the existence of the frontier, has naturally gone further in the Eastern states than in the West, which is, even today, much closer to pioneer conditions. As regards the career of the young man, for example, New England today resembles France more nearly than the Far West.

Beyond the Mississippi, eyebrows are still raised when young George elects to settle down in old George's business, instead of striking out for himself. In most Western communities any healthy man who elects to live on his income without working at something will find himself most unhappily isolated—so much so, indeed, that almost invariably he is forced to flee to New York or Paris. When he does this he finds himself for the first time placed in a society which demands from him a definite degree of sophistication.—New Republic.

No Venomous Snakes

on the Isle of Pines

There are no venomous reptiles or insects on the Isle of Pines. There are four varieties of the smaller snakes. The most formidable reptile is the maja—a constrictor. One of the largest known specimens perhaps is the one killed near Nueva Gerona some years ago in a manger while enjoying his siesta after having dined upon a brooding hen and her eggs.

It measured twelve feet in length and was approximately six inches in diameter except through the part distended by the hen. Its skin, cured, looked like the souvenir of some heroic encounter, but the truth is that the noncombative nature of the maja is so ridiculously at variance with his dreadful aspect that his name is applied as a term of contempt to blusterers and swaggerers. Dr. Luz Hernandez in his book, "The Salubrity of the Isle of Pines," recommends the white meat of the maja to his patients.

The lacertilla are represented by a few harmless lizards, a plenty of pretty chameleons and a variety of the iguanas, rarely seen, whose flesh is esteemed as a food. Specimens have been found three feet in length, but its innocuous nature is evident from the fact that it makes a very well-behaved family pet.

Don't Shed Tusks

Among the Indian or Asiatic elephants only the male has the tusks, but they are found on both the male and female of the African species. Sometimes these tusks weigh from 150 to 200 pounds.

The tusks of the elephants are merely projections of the incisors of the upper jaw and are never shed, although they are sometimes broken off. In other words, the tusks are the part of the elephant's teeth. However, the milk teeth, which precede the tusks, come out at an early age.

The tusks of the elephant supply the ivory which is so highly esteemed the world over for ornamental purposes.—Detroit News.

Fur-fur

A colored mammy came into the office of the estate for which she worked to receive her monthly wages. As she could not write, she always made her mark on the receipt—the usual cross. But on this occasion she made a circle. "What's the matter, Linda?" the man asked. "Why don't you make a cross as usual?" "Why, Linda explained earnestly, "Ah done got married yesterday; ah changed mah name."—Dry Goods Economist.

superior to any plan which involves breeding of game in confinement.

Gold in Mission Altar

Proves Old Mines Existed

Perhaps the most concrete evidence today, pointing to the reality of the legends of early civilization in the Southwest is the altar of San Xavier mission, conducted at the present time by Catholic sisters for the relief of the sick and needy among the Indians. For several hundred years the mission was a cathedral and it is situated a few miles outside of the city of Tucson, Ariz. The altar is inlaid with virgin gold, and pure gold was beaten into the masonry and decorations of the chapel when it was constructed early in the Seventeenth century.

The records of the mission, which have been carefully kept for generations, show that the gold was brought by Indians from the Canada del Oro, where it was mined under the direction of Spanish priests. In fact, the old trail by which the precious metal was transported on mules' backs still exists and leads directly from the cathedral into Canada del Oro and then loses itself in desert wastes.

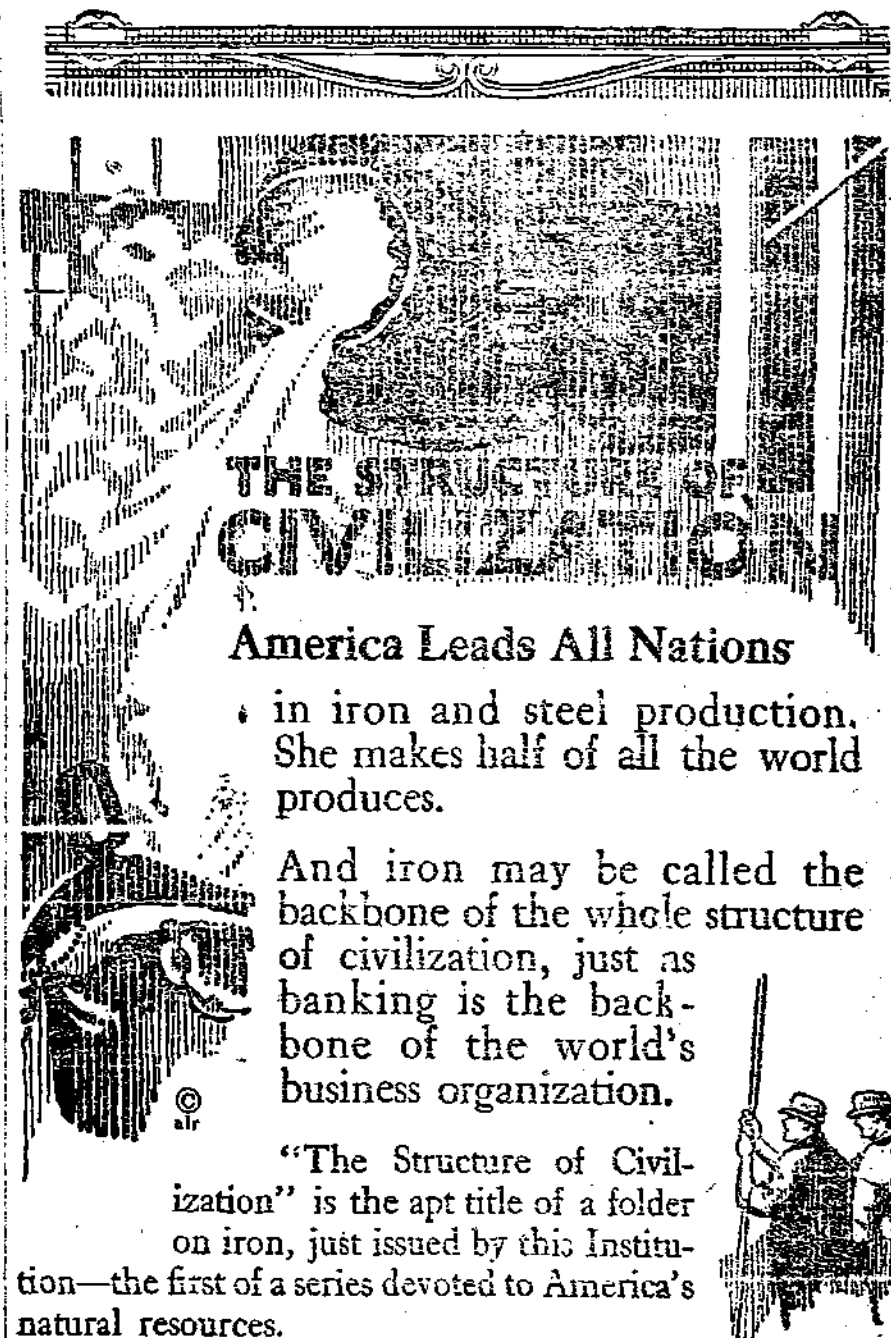

The Apaches attacked the mission about one hundred years ago and drove away the priests. For several years the Indian tribes used the building as a stable, but they did not touch the altar of gold. It is believed that they had no interest in gold intrinsically, for their medicine men are thought to have had, even at that late date, complete information about rich deposits of desert gold.—New York Tribune.

Obtain Paint Remover

by Processing Corncobs

Furfural is the aldehyde of furfuran and is obtained from the processing of corncobs. The corncobs and water are placed in an autoclave and steam at about 130 pounds pressure is admitted and the mixture is permitted to digest for about two hours, after which the furfural is blown off by steam, condensed and collected. The furfural is then separated from the water by distillation. The yield is about 120 pounds of furfural from one ton of corncobs, or approximately 6 per cent.

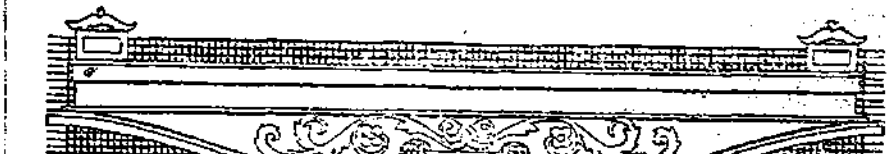

Furfural has an agreeable odor and boils at a temperature above 100 degrees C. Its boiling point is the same as that of turpentine. This makes furfural a much less dangerous substance than some of the solvents that are used in paint and varnish removers. It also obviates the necessity of weighing the solvent with wax, as it evaporates slowly enough to do its work thoroughly. Furthermore, it does not injure the surface underneath. When smeared over a surface it evaporates after a while, but it shows a tendency to form drops. This disadvantage may be removed by the addition of 20 per cent of solvent naphtha. By the addition of wood alcohol the viscosity of the furfural is increased.—Scientific American.

Oil Spring of 1629

The first reference to the discovery of petroleum in America is contained in a letter written in 1629 by Joseph de la Roche d'Allion, a French missionary to the Indians.

He had crossed the Niagara river and made his way southward through western New York into northern Pennsylvania, where he found a spring from which oil flowed.

This oil was highly esteemed by the Indians for medicinal uses, says the Detroit News. The letter of the priest was published in 1882 in Sagard's "Histoire du Canada."

A Demonstration

Pat, a new hired hand in a machine shop, after having been repeatedly warned to keep away from the dangerous machinery, came in contact with a buzz saw. The foreman happening along, saw Pat holding up the bleeding stump of a finger, cried: "Why, Pat, how did that happen?" "Ah, sure, sir," said Pat. "I just put me finger near that saw like this." "Ah, he jabbers there goes another one."—Boys' Magazine.

Our Continuous Obligation

Last year we put in 158,000 new telephones in Pennsylvania. This year we will put in 168,000. During the five years beginning January 1, 1924, the total will be 925,000.

These are gross figures. Our net gain will be about half that number.

Here is an interesting fact: During the coming five years we will actually put in a hundred thousand more new telephones in Pennsylvania than there are in service in the State today.

Every telephone line requires a pair of wires all the way to the central office. That's why we are adding more than half a million miles of new wire each year to our plant in this State.

Every telephone line means central office equipment and building space. That's why we are adding a million and a quarter dollars' worth of telephone apparatus every month inside our buildings.

And that, too, is why it is necessary to enlarge our buildings and to build so many new ones.

All this in a tremendous hurry—why?

Because it's our job to meet the demands for service—not at our convenience, but at the time when the telephones are asked for.

And, too, every added telephone gives your telephone more power.

yesterday hired two young men to carry coal from the street into the cellar of the Kelly residence. The boys were known to Mrs. Kelly and her suspicions were not aroused. Before the work of the boys was completed Mrs. Kelly was called to Pittsburgh and during her absence the door leading from the cellar to the living room was forced open and entrance gained to all portions of the house. Mrs. Kelly returned late yesterday and found her home had been ransacked and later on finding money and jewelry missing, notified the police department. Residents assert that they watched one of the lads standing outside the Kelly residence while the other remained inside for some time. Both boys disappeared about 11 o'clock and since that time the police have been unable to find any trace of them. The robberies which have been performed in the hill district near the Kelly residence took place only when the occupants were absent and it is likely with the apprehension of the two young men the robberies will be accounted for.

Hays Presumed To Have Story Of Intrigue

Washington, March 22.—(United Press).—A new dramatic political sensation hung over the oil committee proceedings today.

As the fire of the Teapot Dome inquiry appeared to be slowly dying out, the investigators spotted a trail of political intrigue that may outclass all the rest.

Will H. Hays, "movie czar," who executed the financing of the last Republican presidential campaign, is supposed to have the new story and is said to be prepared to testify when he is placed upon the stand before nightfall.

Reports that Hays and Attorney General Daugherty received 75,000 shares of oil stock from Harry F. Sinclair, before the administration leased him Teapot Dome, have been current for many days and still lack detail by Daugherty or Hays.

This fact gave rise to speculation that this may be the sensational story that investigators have been promised.

First, the committee will attempt to pry the details out of Sinclair himself, having decided to require him to answer questions which would not incriminate him. They feel that he could well tell whether he gave Hays and Daugherty 75,000 shares of stock without prejudicing any legal proceedings.

An English scientist predicts the early perfection of a machine that will be able to print sounds. The apparatus will be a cross between a dictating machine and a linotype machine, and its success will depend upon the fact that every letter has a different wave form.
